

SCHOLARSHIP CAMPAIGN OPENS

A campaign for increased government scholarships to university students opens here today.

McGill students will be asked to sign a petition prepared by the local committee of the National Federation of Canadian University Students asking for immediate action by both Federal and Provincial governments to increase the number and value of scholarships open to Canadian students.

Petition

The petition, which will be circulated among students in all faculties today, or during the next few days, reads as follows:

"Whereas, there are many university students in real need of financial assistance, and still more people anxious to attend university who are prevented from doing so by financial necessity, and

"Whereas, the cost of attending university has been rising more rapidly than the earning power of students, and

"Whereas, in Canada only 3% of the people age 15 to 24 attend university as compared with 16% of that age group in the United States, and

"Whereas, it is a loss to our national life whenever anyone abandons or does not enter university for financial reasons,

"Be it resolved, that we the students of McGill University favour immediate action by federal and provincial governments to increase the number and value of scholarships to university students."

Nation-Wide

The campaign at McGill is part of a nation-wide campaign for government scholarships, directed by the NFCUS Committee at the University of Toronto.

Varsity Survey

According to surveys from a representative one per cent of students at the University of Toronto, 2% of Varsity students have dropped out for financial reasons; the earning power of male students, has gone down 10% in the last year, and the average man can only earn about one half the amount needed to finance a year at college. Women, on the average, earned only half as much as male students, according to the same survey.

President's Support

Marv Gameroff, President of the Students' Society, expressed the strongest support for the campaign in a statement to The Daily:

"I hope that every student will give the McGill NFCUS Committee their support and co-operation in every way possible during the campaign. Increased aid to students in the form of scholarships is a vital necessity in Canada, and it is our responsibility as students to do everything we can to achieve it. I wish NFCUS the best of luck."

An election rally will take place today at 1 pm in the Union Ballroom. The various candidates of Arts and Science, Engineering, and Commerce will state their platforms, and those attending will be given an opportunity to question the aspiring students. The candidates of Law and Dentistry will speak within their own faculties.

Rene Welter, chief returning officer, will introduce the candidates.

The Arts and Science students will have the biggest choice of all the faculties with eight candidates running for two S.E.C. positions; these consist of Barbara Notkin, Ann Lucas, Michael Butler, Colleen Cooil, Hugh Faulkner, Sean Gresham, Wilson Southam and John Sanderson.

The Engineering Faculty will have the opportunity of choosing among three candidates. They are David C. Ellis, Malcolm Lefcort, and Maurice G. Vezina.

Those running for the S.E.C. position in the faculty of Commerce are: John Jackson and Clarence Blatt.

Those representing the Faculty of Dentistry, are Frank Shamy, and Donald Beauprie.

Michael Fish and Radoslav Zuk are contesting the position for the Faculty of Architecture.

"Today's election rally marks another opportunity for the students to acquaint themselves with the individuals seeking office in the coming election. I would urge all students to attend the rally and thereby avail themselves of this opportunity," said Marvin Gameroff, president of the Students Society.

Annual India Sale To Start Monday In The Union

India visits McGill next week, when there will be a sale of articles from that country and from Greece. A display of articles to be sold is at present in the library.

C.B.C. Television will cover the formal opening of the sale by the High Commissioner of India, His Excellency Dr. Rauf at 4:30 pm on Monday, December 6.

This will be the third sale of its type at McGill since Mrs. E. W. Mulvaney first originated the India Sale two years ago. This will be the one hundred and fifty-fifth sale across Canada and the United States.

The sale will be held next Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday between 2-10 pm. A feature of the second half of the sale will be an International display of dolls.

The India sale is presented under the auspices of the World University Service.

NFCUS VISITS ST. LAURENT URGES MORE SCHOLARSHIPS

Ottawa, Nov. 29: — A delegation of five men, Douglas Burns, president of NFCUS, Peter Martin, vice president of the Ontario region, Bill Angus, president council Toronto, Antonio Enriquez, past president of NFCUS, J. Yves Pilon, general secretary NFCUS, met with Prime Minister St. Laurent on Monday to present a brief to him, in nation-wide appeal for more and larger government scholarships and bursaries.

When the delegates entered the Prime Minister's office, he had already read the brief. His first comment was that the federal government could not, and would not, violate provincial rights in this matter. The plan, as proposed, entailed a large expenditure which could not be justified in the immediate future. However, he made a definite promise to present a separate copy of the brief to every one of his colleagues in the Cabinet. The Canada Council was not discussed, as such, but consensus of opinion was that Mr. St. Laurent was receptive to the idea. The next session of Parliament will deal with a Canada Council bill. NFCUS, in presenting the brief, took the proper channel, and can rest assured that their arguments will be used in the debate on Canada Council.

The Prime Minister emphasized that humanities should receive the same support at graduate level as scientific research projects. Although undergraduate education is strictly in the department of the provincial governments, the Federal Government does and will continue to subsidize post-grad work.

Douglas Burns commented, "In initiating this action, we desire to obtain the Prime Minister's views on the proper method of procedure. The Prime Minister agreed that we used the proper channels, and in doing so, we have his approbation."

The Prime Minister's personal feeling was expressed when he said,

"I think money spent on a good student is a good national investment." But he felt that it would be interfering with a delicate situation to go into the territory of the provinces.

The brief stated, "We are seeking the payment of bursaries and scholarships to a total of 10,000 Canadian students in the form of 2,500 awards, each tenable for four years. 'We feel,' the statement continued, "that this objective is broad enough to assist the valuable 'good' student as well as the merely brilliant, but is not so broad as to be revolutionary."

On the question of Provincial rights in matter, the five page brief had this to say, "We therefore realize that the implementation of an adequate program of

Annual McGill Prom Held This Friday To Be Semi-Formal

The McGill Prom, better known as "One Night in Venice", will be held this Friday night from 10 to 3 in the gymnasium. This year the prom will be semi-formal.

Continuous music will be supplied by Russ Meredith and his band. At the same time there will be an Italian trio to serenade the tables.

Tickets are on sale in special booths in the Union and in the Engineering and Arts buildings. You may get your table reservations when you buy your tickets. This year the cost has been reduced to three dollars, with the SEC subsidizing the difference.

FRESHMAN FINALISTS VIE FOR BOVEY SHIELD

"Resolved that it is better to love than to be loved" will be the topic for today's Bovey Shield debate. The finals will take place at 1 pm in the Union.

The finalists, Norman Samuels, Len Max and David Friedman will have their speeches judged by Avrum Cohen, a second year law student; Hank Nevard, Law III; and by the University Chaplain, Reverend Knowles.

The Bovey Shield, is emblematic of the best freshman orator of the year. It will be presented to the winner by Bryce Weir who won it last year.

A member of the executive had this to say about the debaters: "The three finalists have proven to be imaginative, entertaining and worthy public speakers. They are evenly matched so the contest will be close and exciting."

Since this is considered to be one of the big events in the McGill debating year, a large audience is expected. Spectators will be permitted to eat their lunches while listening to the speakers.

REGISTRATION FOR PERMANENT EMPLOYMENT

All final-year students, especially those in B.A. and B.Sc. courses, desiring the assistance of the Placement Service in securing permanent employment should now register. Interviewing hours are from 2-4:30 pm each afternoon.

THE SCHOLARSHIP PETITION

Two petitions are being circulated today. One of them, sponsored by the McGill Committee of the National Federation of Canadian University Students, calls for immediate government action to increase scholarships available to prospective university students. The other requests a Student's Society Meeting, hoping that McGill will secede from Federation.

The scholarship petition deserves the support of every student, whether or not he approves of the organization that sponsors it. Even if he thinks that the campaign is useless, that it is being conducted in the wrong way, or that it can never succeed, we would urge each student to sign the petition, so that there may be conclusive evidence that McGill students do want government scholarships.

That government scholarships are necessary is indicated by the small proportion of Canadian students who are able to have a university education, compared with that in Britain and the United States. In neither case is the comparison pleasant.

We hope that both Federal and Provincial governments will act to provide opportunities for a university education to the many Canadians that lack them. They will not act, however, unless we can show them that there is both a need and a demand for these scholarships. If the nationwide campaign being sponsored by NFCUS can do this, it will have accomplished much.

This campaign, then, is something valuable in itself — whether run by NFCUS or by some other organization. We hope that McGill students will realize this, and give the campaign their wholehearted support.

Letters to the Editor

Reply to a Korean Veteran

Dear Sir:

In reply to that portion of G. H. Osborne's letter printed in Friday's Daily, concerning Senator McCarthy, I have this to say: McCarthy measures his "fellow Americans" accordingly as they agree or disagree with him. He has spoken of the previous Democratic administration as "twenty years of treason." It is quite apparent that one need disagree with McCarthy only a little in order to become treasonous. In effect, anyone who does not tread the McCarthy line is a traitor. The same demand for following the party line is obtainable in Russia.

Verbal Abuse

McCarthy has abused verbally men and women before his subcommittee, in public, and in the Senate. Verbal abuse is a characteristic of communism.

McCarthy and communism have in common the big lie, the half-truth, verbal abuse, and the narrow-minded quality of calling dissenters traitors. Such characteristics in a society which makes claims to freedom of thought and expression are destructive to that society.

Deviationism

Some 15 years ago John Paton Davies saw that Nationalist China would most likely fall to the Communists. He suggested to his superiors in the State Department that they urge Chiang and the communists to unite. State turned deaf ears to his proposal, so Davies went over their heads to the public through the newspapers. For this he has recently been sacked. For this proposal he is called a traitor by McCarthy. I shouldn't be surprised but what the price of McCarthy's silence during the recent election was Davies dismissal. McCarthy has requested that government workers go over the heads of their departments and report to him anything which deviates from his views. Deviationism is a sin in communist countries too.

A Menace

McCarthy calls Senator Watkins a "coward" because Watkins after two hours of oral questioning had told McCarthy to submit his questions in writing thereafter. From the New York Times: "Senator Watkins has a spastic stomach muscle which, if he becomes fatigued or is under prolonged tension, causes him to faint. He had taken the floor against his doctor's orders." Meanwhile, the great, heroic, courageous McCarthy jams his elbow into a glass table and takes himself to a hospital bed with the accruing advantage to himself that the Senate does not like to discuss such cases in the absence of the man under discussion. McCarthy didn't care that Hendrickson wasn't present when he called the latter "a living miracle . . . without brains or guts." McCarthy is a menace.

Immeasurable Harm

There is a difference between a private and a public citizen. A private citizen may express extremist views doing little harm. But a public citizen can do immeasurable harm with similar expression. McCarthy in his capacity as a public citizen has abused individuals, has taken advantage of Senate rules and fellow Senators, has depended on the right of free speech to condemn others who have taken far less advantage of that right than he.

If the Senate censures McCarthy, he will have received small enough punishment. I am convinced that his conduct merits the following penalties: censure, expulsion from the Senate, in conjunction with a private bill banning him from ever again holding public office.

I, too, am an American-Korean "Vet"-here-now-type. Since I was in the navy, I didn't see as much as the soldiers. Our biggest enemy was the group of fat-headed, narrow-minded, McCarthy-like "patriots" who ran the ship. As a result of my service extreme "patriotism" makes me sick.

UNIVERSITIES AND SOCIETY

By Hersh Segal

The Canadian university is an extension course for the training of good citizens to live the liberal Canadian life. Since campus society is not different from the "outside world", but only an underdeveloped miniature of it, we can observe university institutions which parallel those of our outside society. In the liberal Canadian society citizens who vote are giving their consent to some man to look after their interests, reserving the right to become indignant if anything should go wrong. The rest of their activity takes place in private clubs and other organizations.

Now visualize the McGill campus where few vote for their SEC representatives, and of those who do vote there are few who care. Political clubs are usually run by innocents, do-gooders, or ambitious social science students; and real organizational life is carried on by fraternities (later to be Rotary clubs and Lodges) and other private and sometimes exclusive groups.

On a Higher Level

Some students may object saying that our campus organizations are on a "higher" level than organizations in Canadian society. In reply I need only point to a great deal of McGill Daily journalism and compare it to be the sensationalist press. I need only mention the crude public school methods of obtaining discipline in some science and Latin classes, and even in English courses. I might further mention the ability of the majority of our student body to lose themselves in a sport event to a degree which is fantastically out of proportion within the context of the idea of a university. And so on.

My conclusion is not that the situation as I have described it is deplorable but simply that it exists; i.e. university equals society.

It Hardly Exists

What of the political consciousness of the McGill student? It is equal to that of the citizen in our liberal Canadian society. It hardly exists. By political consciousness we refer to the individual's interest in the shaping and carrying out of actual government policy in both the domestic and international spheres. "Well," the chorus demands, "has not our liberal method of muddling through, of trial and error, produced a happy prosperous society, one that has resisted the danger of an intellectual elite imposing its ideas to the extent of restricting the mass' freedom? Is it not better to be inefficient and free than efficiently ruled? What then is wrong with allowing this same pattern of society to exist in the university?"

An Excuse for Irresponsibility

I won't even pretend to be able to answer the above. I would only caution those who gleefully welcome this philosophy of trial and error that it gives irresponsibility an excuse to exist under the category of "error". Also that our good fortune up until now might have been just that — good fortune. Fortune vacillates unpredictably, but it can be somewhat controlled if an effort is made to understand it.

Two Other Types

Excluding Communist controlled universities, we may generally see two other ideas of a university community which differ from the Canadian one. In underdeveloped areas students are politically conscious, for obvious reasons, and active leaders in their respective societies. On the other hand, the European student is traditionally recognized as a student member of society, a member of an elite who should, as a result of the amount of time he devotes to study, be capable of producing "better" ideas on various topics, including the organization of society.

We Regret . . .

The Daily regrets that certain remarks made with respect to Socialism and the socialist parties in editorials of November 8 and November 15 caused offence in some quarters, and apologizes for any impropriety contained in these remarks.

"For a mild cigarette... Smoke a fresh cigarette!"

SWEET CAPS

Always fresh

TRULY MILD!

At the risk of ending the 1954 football season on a sour note and perhaps being accused of crying over spilt milk, we present the following for what it may be worth. None of the views are revolutionary; most are already in the form of rumors hovering around the campus. They are presented here, perhaps in a different light and certainly with considerably more weight, because they were told to us by Laird Sloan.

Laird Sloan, as some of us may remember, was an outstanding freshman track star for McGill two years ago. His accomplishments around the cinders prior to his McGill career included numerous Canadian, Quebec and local track schoolboy records in any one of six events ranging from the broad jump to the 440 yard dash. While running for West Hill High School, the dynamic Mr. Sloan used to enter five or six track and field events in the Dominion schoolboy meet and come out with blue ribbons (and at times new records) in every one. He matriculated from WHHS with a first class average and won an alumni scholarship for it.

His feats after leaving McGill (Sloan was offered and athletic scholarship to attend Michigan University and left McGill to study there) are even more impressive. As an 18 year old this past Summer, he gained a berth on the Canadian British Empire Games track and reached the semi-finals of the quarter mile heats with a sizzling 48.5 seconds time. Currently he is considered one of Canada's outstanding prospects for the next Olympics.

Because of his athletic ways, Sloan has, at one time or another befriended most of Eastern Canada's high school and college athletes and so could speak with some authority on the athletic subsidization set-up now existing at Canadian Universities. When asked if there was any doubt in his mind that athletes were receiving financial assistance from Universities other than McGill in the CIAU, his answer was an emphatic "No".

He went on to say that Gary Schreider, Queen's University's speedy halfback and placement specialist is definitely being subsidized for playing with the Gaels. Schreider, whose reputation as a trackster exceeds even his fame on the gridiron, had several offers from American schools but chose Queen's because he was getting a 'better deal'.

In fact, continued Sloan, most Canadian athletes now competing in the States, whom he has talked to, have said that the Canadian schools had approached them with better offers than the ones they now have. The reason they still chose the States was the promise of better coaching and competition.

Sloan speaks of an offer by one of the Canadian Three to transport whole of Ace Percival's Toronto Sport Club, which included among other track greets, the same Gary Schreider, Don Aitken, Pete Sutton and Rich Ferguson, to track meets across the country if the members were willing to attend that University after high school graduation. That deal, fortunately, never did blossom into reality.

Zeno Karcz, Michigan footballer and a personal friend of Sloan's, has admitted that he had received offers from Western before coming to Michigan. Johnny Hauch is another similar example. Hauch was to be subsidized at Western but failed to pass French in his high school years and couldn't be admitted. He is now at Michigan where French is not a required entrance credit.

Ken Bottoms, a promising discus specialist now at Michigan, could have gone to Western with financial aid but chose Michigan because of greater chances to improve in his field. John Ramsel is a boy that did it the other way. Ramsel failed to keep up a passing grade at Michigan and so lost his scholarship. He is now at Western where he recently garnered points for the Mustangs in the intercollegiate track and field meet.

The type of athlete subsidization offered by the other schools competing in the CIAU take the form of alumni grants. There is nothing anyone can do if the University alumni wants to pay a boy's way through college. The practice has certainly improved the league from the calibre of play standpoint. What we disapprove of is the fact that these dealings are all made under the table and kept secret — as much as possible, that is.

Boxers Make Debut

Six McGill boxers will make their 1954-55 debut in inter-team matches as guests of the Caledonia Curling Club on Sat., Dec. 4. The three bouts will entertain 150 members of the home club.

After the fistieuffs at 2 pm the Redmen will try their hand at curling. Although they will encounter solidly built 44 pound squats (circular stones), the squats will not punch back. This will come as good news to several of the Redmen who know little about curling because they will need all their punching power for the first athletics night on December 11.

On the 11th, eight bouts will be run off and this is one card in which Robert K. Christenberry will not have to hold up a fighters purse because of a poor effort. These unglorified college men fight simply for the fun of it but when the bell rings they don't fool around. Although these pugilists cause no fear in the minds of world champions like Bobo Olson and Archie Moore, they do put up as good a show as any that can be found in a college ring across Canada.
